Subject: Information Item: Update on Medical Marijuana Businesses

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY:

In November 2009, the City Council approved interim regulations regarding the operation of medical marijuana businesses in the City of Boulder to provide near-term guidance for the siting of such businesses while allowing staff time to research and formulate permanent regulations. Per Ordinance 7707, the interim regulations are set to expire on March 31, 2010.

The purpose of this correspondence is to update council on the following:

- 1) Recent State and Local Action
- 2) Trends in License Applications in Boulder
- 3) Public Outreach and Input Regarding the Interim Regulations
- 4) Proposed Work Program and Next Steps

RECENT STATE AND LOCAL ACTION:

State Senator Chris Romer is sponsoring a bill in the upcoming 2010 session regarding medical marijuana that would establish a licensing authority for the manufacturing, distribution, and sale of medical marijuana through the state. Romer announced on January 11 that he was pulling the bill, and would be submitting another. He did not specify whether the redrafted bill would be the same or a different concept. Other legislators have also indicated they will be introducing bills in the 2010 legislative session.

There are two court decisions pending. For one, the Colorado Supreme Court will determine whether it will review the People v. Clendenin case. The Court of Appeals had ruled that a caregiver could not just provide marijuana, but must provide some other service to a patient. In the second case, the issues are still at the trial court level and include a determination whether a city can prohibit medical marijuana because it is still illegal at the federal level.

Several communities within the state are currently experiencing issues related to the regulation of medical marijuana businesses. Many communities in the state have imposed some type of moratorium in the interim to allow time to determine the outcome of the next legislative session. Refer to Attachment A for information related to how other local governments in the state are responding to the issues surrounding medical marijuana. Of the 17 Colorado communities surveyed, 11 have enacted moratoria to determine how to regulate medical marijuana businesses in the future and five have completely prohibited such uses. In November 2009, a ballot initiative to legalize marijuana in the Town of Breckenridge was approved by voters. The City of Denver recently approved an ordinance regulating medical marijuana businesses that has proposed a licensing structure in addition to performance standards and separation requirements for medical marijuana businesses.

Staff will continue to monitor the state's actions as well as the actions of other local governments both locally and nationally.

TRENDS IN LICENSE APPLICATIONS IN BOULDER

As indicated in Attachment B, by the end of December 2009, the city has received 121 applications for sales tax licenses related to medical marijuana businesses. 82 sales tax licenses for medical marijuana related businesses (including both dispensaries and commercial growing facilities) have been approved and issued. It is important to note that the approval of a sales tax license does not automatically translate into a business being opened. In some cases the city is aware of businesses that have applied for licenses at multiple locations pending final lease agreements. As points of comparison, as of January 5, 2009 the City of Denver had issued more than 300 sales tax licenses for medical marijuana businesses and the City of Ft. Collins had issued 108.

While there was a surge in applications in November 2009 in advance of and subsequent to council's enactment of the interim regulations, it appears that most areas in the city's three major activity centers (University Hill, The Boulder Valley Regional Center and Downtown) are approaching saturation based on the separation requirements included in the interim regulations. North Boulder and industrial areas in the eastern portion of the city have also seen an increase in the number of applications and are nearing saturation. Applications for licenses involving medical marijuana businesses have slowed in the month of December as indicated by the table below:

PUBLIC OUTREACH AND INPUT RE: THE INTERIM REGULATIONS:

Given the extensive public comments received at the Planning Board and City Council hearings in October and November, staff is using online media to solicit public feedback on the interim regulations as well as other suggestions regarding the regulation of medical marijuana. A similar method for attaining public comment was successfully used for the nuisance abatement ordinance in September 2009.

Public outreach will include use of the social networking website Facebook, an online survey using Survey Monkey, and "email blasts" to the University of Colorado's e-memo email list serve as well as the city's website and various neighborhood and stakeholder email list serves. A medical marijuana feedback web page will also be created to serve as a hub for public input. Information regarding the survey and web page (with web links) will also appear in an online ad on the Daily Camera website.

Questions in the survey and posed in other online fora focus on issues related to the application of the interim regulations, in particular issues of spacing/saturation and impact on street vitality and neighborhood quality. It will also provide opportunity for the public to comment on any other issues of interest or concern related to the location or operation of medical marijuana businesses in Boulder.

In addition to online input, written input received by post, in person or via email is being logged.

PROPOSED WORK PROGRAM AND NEXT STEPS:

Ordinance 7707 focuses primarily on land use regulations as a means to regulate medical marijuana dispensaries within the city. Those interim regulations will expire on March 31, 2010.

Listed below is an outline of the work program that staff will be conducting between now and March 31, 2010 to present to Council an ordinance to replace the interim regulations with permanent regulations.

January Conduct public outreach and input regarding the interim regulations

Conduct staff analysis of licensing process and zoning review process as well as public input to identify potential changes to the interim regulations and related procedures. The review will be guided by the following principles:

- Provide for safe and convenient access to medical marijuana in the City of Boulder for patients.
- Protect public health and safety through reasonable limitations on business operations as they relate to noise, air and water quality, food safety, neighborhood and patient safety, security for the business and its personnel, public safety and other concerns.
- Provide for lively street life and high quality neighborhoods by limiting the concentration of any one type of business in specific areas.
- Provide for the cost to the city so that the licensing of medical marijuana businesses will "pay its own way."

February	Draft the Proposed Regulations based on public input and staff analysis and conduct a tour of local medical marijuana businesses.
Feb 12	Release of Planning Board memorandum of recommendation
Feb 18	Planning Board public hearing regarding proposed regulations.
Mar 02	City Council, first reading of proposed regulations
Mar 16	City Council, second reading of proposed regulations and 30 day extension of interim regulations by emergency ordinance (to cover the 30 day gap until the permanent regulations become effective).
